Shuma Development Projects (SDP) is a women majority owned and managed company. It was formed essentially to harness the combined training and experiences gained in the mining environment. The core initiators have over 29 years' working experience working for Anglo American Corporation and De Beers Companies.

Our main goal is to utilise our professional training, knowledge and experiences in advancing the development of our country through entrepreneurial training for the mining communities and other entities. The company's emphasis is based on the realization that communities and employees are left without any significant improvement in their quality of lives by lack of infrastructure especially in the rural areas. SDP has been engaged in several activities in pursuance of addressing identified needs of the disadvantaged communities.
